Sam Houston, of Texas, on the Subject of Compromise: In the Senate of the United States, February 8, 1850 The resolution was then read as follows: Whereas the Congress of the United States, possessing only a delegated authority, has no power over the subject of negro slavery within the limits of the United States, either to prohibit or interfere with it in the States, Territories, or District, where, by municipal law it now exists, or to establish it in any State or Territory where it does not exist, but as an assurance and guaranty to promote harmony, quiet apprehension, and remove sectional prejudice, which by possibility might impair or weaken love and devotion to the Union in any part of the country, it is hereby Resolved, That as the people in the Territories have the same inherent right of self government as the people in the States, that if, in the exercise of such inherent right, the people in the newly acquired territories by the annexation of Texas and the acquisition of California and New Mexico, south of the parallel of 36 deg. and 30 min. of north latitude, extending to the Pacific ocean, shall establish negro slavery or prohibit it, that such establishment or prohibition of negro slavery in the formation of their State Governments, shall be deemed no objection to the admission of such State or States into the Union, in accordance with the Constitution of the United States. Mr. Houston resumed. Mr. President, my object in the introduction of this resolution was to present a ground which I believed was equitable and just, between the conflicting interests and prejudices...
