Excerpt: .in his soul, for that at least is real! 2. Add to this, the burden of the heart weighing on itself. It has been truly said that the human heart is like the millstone, which, if there be wheat beneath it, will grind to purposes of health; if not, will grind still, at the will of the wild wind, but on itself. So does the heart wear out itself, against its own thought. One fixed idea--one remembrance, and no other--one stationary, wearing anguish. This is remorse, passing into despair; itself the goad to fresh and wilder crimes. The worst of such a burden is that it keeps down the soul from good. Many an ethereal spirit, which might have climbed the heights of holiness, and breathed the rare and difficult air of the mountain top, where the heavenliest spirituality alone can live, is weighed...
